LITERARY NOVELTIES.

FORTHCOMING Works, together with such as are in anticipation, are announced under this head weekly.
A List of Works, subscribed in the Metropolis, appears regularly in every number.

THE LITERARY GAZETTE.

The Literary Gazette, Established 1817; Enlarged 1946. Price Fourpence; Stamped, to go free by Post, Fivepence. (Monthly Parts, containing Four or Five Numbers, 1s. 4d. or 1s. 8d.) Published every Saturday, in time for transmission to all parts of the Country by the early trains or morning mails of the same day, at the Literary Gazette Office, No. 360, Strand, London.

So long held in high public estimation, the Literary Gazette continues to afford a complete view and record of the National Literature, Science, and the Fine Arts, with the addition of Foreign Intelligence on the same subjects from every part of the civilized world. It has also, of late, devoted full and particular attention to the proceedings of all Antiquarian Associations at Home and Abroad, and to the Archaeological Discoveries which have become so extensive and interesting throughout the Empire. Of these, and other Literary matters of importance, this Journal is, in fact, the only comprehensive Exponent in the Periodical Press; and Members of Literary and Scientific Societies, as well as intelligent readers of every class, who reside in remote parts, may through its columns be promptly made acquainted with all that is done or heard of at Head Quarters. For rising Families it is peculiarly adapted, as it conveys instruction of every kind, mingled with the more amusing literature which is calculated to attract and interest youthful minds, till they are filled with the information and knowledge of the passing time.

May be ordered of any Bookseller or Newsmen in Town or Country, or at the Literary Gazette Publishing and Advertising Office, No. 360, Strand, London; where also the yearly subscription of 21s. 6d., or half-yearly, 10s. 10d. may be paid, by Post-Office Order or Town reference, and the Literary Gazette, stamped for the Country or Colonies, will be regularly forwarded by post; or, if in Monthly Parts, at 17s. 4d. per annum, with the monthly periodicals.

Early communications are requested from Subscribers desirous of commencing with the New Year, 1849.

"The Literary Gazette," says a friendly contemporary critic, and one we are gratified to know of no mean authority, is thus pleased to characterize our Journal—"We know no periodical that we regard with more cordiality than the Literary Gazette. One of the oldest of its class, it has kept on its course, if not always 'rejoicing,'—for we apprehend it has sometimes felt the vicissitudes of literary property,—always in the spirit of gentlemanly courtesy and high principle, and one we are gratified to know of no mean authority, is thus pleased to characterize our Journal—"We know no periodical that we regard with more cordiality than the Literary Gazette.
